

CLAIMS

What is claimed is:

1. A mobile communicator, which utilizes wireless transmitting technology to receive or emit signals, the appearance of the mobile communicator at least includes a 5 plurality of buttons that is used to input data and a display that is used to show information, the mobile communicator characterized in:

the display is located below the plurality of buttons.

2. The mobile communicator according to claim 1, wherein the appearance further includes an antenna on the top.

10 3. The mobile communicator according to claim 1, wherein the appearance further includes a sound-taking aperture which is located between the antenna and the plurality of buttons.

4. The mobile communicator according to claim 1, wherein the appearance further includes a sound-sending aperture which is located on the lower position.